Psychosexual Alignment Specialist

Jacqui's unique views on sexual function, human psychology, and emotions are heralded as having the potential to change the universal perspective on health and relationships.

Her father's suicide seemed to be a morbid ending to Jacqui Olliver's teenage years of isolation, loneliness and not feeling wanted.

Like many other experts, her life started out as a troubled teenager, working through the mental contamination associated with sexual abuse, low self-esteem, social anxiety, and depression.

Jacqui stumbled into a relationship with a man who became her best friend even though he had many issues such as gambling, alcohol, and sexual dysfunction.

She persisted, as a loyal companion until the morning of their 15th anniversary when she awoke to find him passed away on the sofa.

She remembers shaking his shoulders and while his head was rolling loosely, telling him that this was not part of the plan!

Suddenly, Jacqui felt like an outsider in a world where she just didn't belong.

It seemed like the world was full of couples, friends and families who had each other, while it felt like she had no one.

After dealing with the death of her partner - the loss, grief, loneliness, and despair through counselling and working in the health and wellness industry, Jacqui realized the answers she was looking for were buried deep within her.

She spent 8 years researching and developing effective methods to not only shine in her own life but help restore emotional balance and solve male and female sex problems.

Jacqui's life experience has enabled her to relate to and understand the pressure and frustrations experienced by people in or out of relationships who are unable to relax within the most intimate moments of connection with another...

How mentally devastating it is to feel incomplete as a person and to feel like a failure as a human being.

Topic: The Hidden Causes of Sexual Intimacy Issues

Why are 80% of people suffering from sex problems? While children, work, and health issues can affect a person's sex drive and overall desire for sex, and diet and exercise play a contributing role in sexual function, they are usually not the main cause of male and female sex problems... So what is the underlying problem?

In Jacqui's many years of experience in solving sex problems for men and women, the leading cause of sexual function issues and a low libido in either partner, is mental contamination. Thoughts about unwanted problems increases wrong sexual focus which can easily make one sexual problem morph into two or more; as well as relationships breaking down due to feelings of isolation and disconnect.

People are craving real insights and knowledge to restore satisfaction in this important area of their lives. So let's take a look at how misdirected thoughts and a lack of knowledge around intimacy can negatively affect a person's libido and the desire for both partners to connect:

- ❖ What is the biggest challenge that people are facing sexually?
- ❖ What role does past sexual abuse have in causing sex problems for people?
- ❖ Why does it take so long for most women to reach an orgasm?
